

Public Transport

From the main station, take tramline no. 51 or 53 to reach the Max Planck Institute for Polymer Research. The journey should take about 10 minutes.

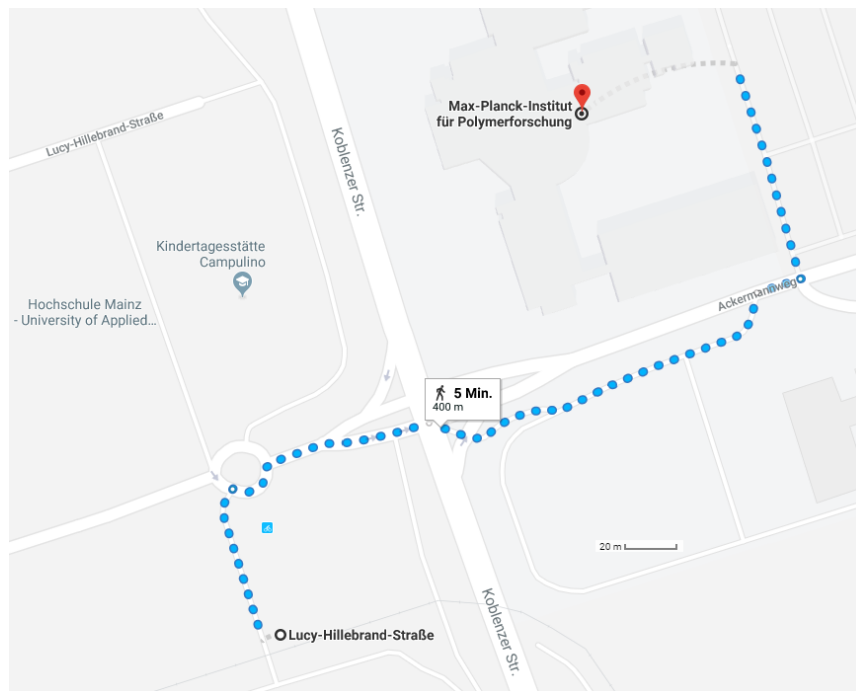

Fares

Single fare tickets can be bought at a vending machine or from the driver. A one-way ticket costs 2.80 Euros. You can find more information about the fares at Mainzer Verkehrsgesellschaft.

If you arrive at Mainz central station with a RMV or RNN ticket, no extra ticket is needed to reach the institute. The same applies, if you have a long distance train ticket with the addition "Mainz+City": no need to pay for the public transportation ride directly preceding or following your train journey.

Tramlines no. 51 and 53 (direction Lerchenberg/Hindemithstraße)

Tram no. 51 departs from platform A, tram no. 53 from platform L. Get off at the stop "Hochschule Mainz". The institute can be reached after a two-minute walk across Koblenzer Straße into Ackermannweg.

By Car

From the south via the A60 highway

Take the exit no. 20 (Mainz-Lerchenberg). Turn right onto "Koblenzer Straße" and keep in the left lane. Before the fifth traffic light, turn right to arrive at the main entrance of the university. The Institute is located on your left hand side.

From the north via the A60 highway

Take the exit no. 19 (Mainz-Finthen) and follow the sign "Innenstadt". After passing the roundabout "Europaplatz" take the next left and follow the direction "Bretzenheim" and "Universität". Turn left at the first traffic light and again at the next traffic light to arrive at the main entrance of the university. The Institute is located on your left hand side.

Taxis

Taxis in Mainz can be arranged using by calling 06131 910 910.

Users will need to provide their name, their address which they wish to be picked up from, their destination, the date and time of pick-up (also possible for immediate pick-up).

More information can be found at <https://www.taxi-mainz.de/bestellung.php>

Alternatively, you may also wish to use the mytaxi app (available on App Store and Google Play) for arranging your taxi.